Dear Friends,

Blue Roses thanks you for your time, money, attendance and talent, all of which help make our projects and productions artistically successful. Our company will continue to stage and explore the work of new artists and America's greatest playwright, Tennessee Williams, thanks to people like you.

Our 2002-2003 Season begins with Infusion³, the continuation of our new works development series featuring monologues, one-acts and music with a post performance discussion. We follow with The Reality Is written by Tim Brown, Associate Artistic Director of Blue Roses Productions. In February, we will host a reading of a full-length Tennessee Williams' play, in honor of his birthday month. Join us on March 1st for Mardi Gras Madness and party New Orleans style! To close our season, we will produce Ephemera a new play by award winning playwright John Yearley, directed by Erma Duricko, Artistic Director of Blue Roses. Check our website for continuous updates and more information. www.blueroses.org

As is true with any small non-profit theatre company, raising money to fund a season can be difficult. To quote our favorite playwright, we "have always depended on the kindness of strangers". We continue to need all the monetary support that our friends and fans can provide.

Please use the form below to invest in the future of American theatre. There is no donation too small to help our company continue to pursue our mission. To name just a few of the monthly expenses we incur, $20 will cover our bank fees, and $36 will pay for our fax and phone lines. A donation of $800 will cover the copying costs for the entire Blue Roses season and $2000 would cover the advertising budget for one of our productions. Of course, the generosity of a "Big Daddy" would sponsor a full showcase production and help insure the future life of Blue Roses. Remember, all contributions are tax deductible.

We look forward to seeing you throughout our season. As Tennessee would say – En Avant!
